Re: Postmaster General DeJoy

Dear Vice Chairwoman Poling and Commissioners Acton, Fisher, and Taub:

During this period when the public may weigh in on the performance and condition of our beloved United States Postal Service, please accept and consider my plea to replace Postmaster General Louis DeJoy quickly with a postmaster general who is not bent on destroying the service but rather on helping it recover from the depredations of Mr. DeJoy and then improving it with time. Mr. DeJoy's actions since assuming the office of postmaster general have shown with astounding clarity his intent to render our postal service a shadow of its venerable and stalwart self, presumably for the purpose of furthering the case that it is an anachronism and should be privatized.

The news that not only mail was delayed but that living animals died of thirst and starvation in USPS warehouses while awaiting delivery illustrates starkly the callousness and intent on deliberate destruction of not only the service itself but of information, goods, important emotional correspondence, and even lives that depended and will continue to depend on expeditious delivery.

It has been clear since at least the administration of George W. Bush that certain entities in our government have had their eyes on the extraordinarily rich prospects of attaining ownership of our postal service. That must not happen. The current attempts to portray the postal service as inept and in need of "better" management are transparently self-serving. That such attempts have cost treasure and lives makes DeJoy's actions even more reprehensible.

Thank you for your attention. Please do what is right and not just what is easy.

Yours truly,

Kerin Forsyth
